WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT THE WHITEBOARD

“The Future Hunters – they don’t claim to tell the future...but you’d bet they did. NACS has been a member of The Future Hunters’ Whiteboard Program for over 20 years and the results of their research have been spot on helping our industry better understand what the future looks like and what the implications are to our members’ businesses. With the next generation of the firm’s futurists now involved, we expect to rely on their vision and interpretations of the future for some time to come.

“Two explicit objectives of the Advanced Strategic Art Program at the US Army War College are: help the students (Lieutenant Colonels, Colonels and government civilians) build frameworks for evaluation and; understand the environment external to the Department of Defense. The Future Hunters’ white papers provide a superb forum for objectives and are used in class each year. The students analyze these well written, superbly documented and thought provoking papers to determine how The Future Hunters’ view of the future could affect the United States armed forces.

“The best example of our relationship with The Future Hunters was the integration of their ‘Thinking Technologies’ to our Western European Fabric Care team. We created an ‘Alien Eyes’ workshop, based on The Future Hunters’ book ‘FutureThink,’ which greatly influenced the thinking of the team and its leadership. This contributed to the ‘Power of Water’ insight that led to the launch of Ariel Excel Gel – one of the biggest launches in Fabric Care History. ‘Seeing with Alien Eyes’ has now become part of the vernacular at P&G.

“The specific changes that resulted in our services and solutions are too numerous to mention, but I am confident in saying that at least 75% of the ideas had a significant impact on the growth and profitability of our firm. In 1999 when I started as CEO, the firm’s revenue was $145 million and by the end of 2006 the company had grown to $423 million – or slightly over a 190% growth rate during the 8 year period. I do not believe this level of performance would have been possible without the assistance we received from The Future Hunters in helping us understand the significant trends impacting our clients and our firm.
